

Coronavirus.

Upper Dales Holiday Cottages does not condone breaking the government's guide lines on non-essential travel.

Travel to a holiday destination could be deemed as non-essential.

Extract: Published 20 March 2020

The government has also urged the public to take further steps to protect themselves and the wider population from the coronavirus, including:

Everyone to stay at home unless they need to get essential supplies such as food and medicines.

The decision to keep a cottage open for to let is completely at the individual owner's discretion and not Upper Dales Holiday Cottages.

Contacting the owner will clarify their policy on this.